There are almost 24 million children under age 6 in the United States. Large numbers of young children are growing up in families experiencing economic hardship.

NCCP | Young Children at Risk

Studying the influence of the environment on the development of young children at risk is a complex task. It involves understanding the various factors that can affect their growth and development, such as family structure, socioeconomic status, and access to resources. While there are many challenges, there are also many opportunities to make a positive impact on their lives. By providing a safe and supportive environment, we can help these children reach their full potential and build a bright future.
